From Jana in Retreat Branch

Hello Potters

Summer is approaching and the silly season is nearly upon us and time to get ourselves into gear and working. Remember 19th November is the Rondebosch Potters Market.

Good news - Brenda at Claybright has developed Red Hot and Lime Green underglazes, which honour their names!!

Our shipment of Gare and Amaco has arrived, along with new bisque for Christmas decorations and I have managed to sneak in a couple of gnomes too!

If I don't see you before, have great holidays and keep safe and see you soon, Jana.

From Greg in Montague Gardens Branch

Are you perhaps suffering from lack of inspiration or simply becoming bored with your work? Perhaps a change in technique could prove to be the answer you've been looking for. How about giving your work a heavily textured surface?

There are endless possibilities for creating textured effects. Wedge combustible materials, such as breakfast cereal, sawdust, rice, straw or leaves into the clay. These will burn away during firing to produce interesting holes and pockets in your work. Try rolling your clay onto textured surfaces before using it to make pots. Corrugated cardboard, rubber mats, tree bark, lace and frosted glass are just a few possibilities (remember to remove before firing!). Use slip to help create an interesting surface by pushing crumpled foil, broken brick or other textures into a coating of damp slip. Alternatively, cloth can be dipped into slip and wrapped around a clay pot. Combine fragments of other clays, coloured grog, particles of rust or glass, or other interest materials with your clay to create a surface with character.

I took this article from the Potters Question and Answer book by Gill Bliss, which I maintain is still one of the best pottery books available. It's been around for quite a while already but answers all those most frequently asked questions. Every teacher should have a copy and even 'old hats' will find it invaluable. What to look for when buying second hand equipment, making emergency repairs to your kiln, this book has it all. Our current price is R 338-40.

A few white tips – Christmas snowflakes for potters.

White crackle – mix zircon with Raku base to make a cold white glaze. For a warm white – use tin instead (7-10%). Titanium would give you "break up"

Want to paint an item made from our charcoal clay with underglaze colours? Use one coat of Amaco white underglaze before applying other underglaze colours.

Gold lustre over platinum lustre = white gold.

To mix Plaster of Paris – ALWAYS add powder to water and only stir when powder level has risen to the top of water – this prevents lumps. Tim Morris (Sgraffiti no.12).

White porcelain – for a history of the invention of European porcelain read The Arcanum by Janet Gleeson.

To all my customers – thank you for a wonderful year. I've been privileged to be at workshops, Jamborees and exhibitions and to visit studios. It has been a full year of sharing and learning, fun, laughter, grumbles and growth.

May clay keep grounding and centering us, and fire keep testing and strengthening us.

COURSES AT THE SOMERSET WEST

BRANCH

CPS has been running workshops at the Somerset West branch for 2 years now. The most sought-after have been our Glaze Demystified, Mould Making and Multi-firing courses. Popular demonstration courses have been on glass slumping, stains and oxides, glazing and firing, and lustres and onglazes. We hope to continue offering varied courses in our regular Wednesday and Thursday morning slots. On the cards for the beginning of next year include : Tantalizing Tiles and the Essence of Brushstrokes. Klaus Fuhlbrugge has agreed to lead us in another mould making course – please phone ASAP (Aafke – 021-8523548) to put your name down for this one.

We can only take 12 people and already have a shortlist of interested people.

Keep your eyes peeled at all 3 branches for further information and let us know what areas of pottery/ceramics you'd like to know more about.

1. Large Scale Ceramics - Jim Robinson
A fine handbook on how to sculpture large pieces, besides showing you the finished pieces, it also illustrates how to get there! And with limited stocks of grogged earthenware paperclay available at our stores, good time to have a go! Price R 186.00
2. Alternative Kilns - Ian Gregory
Self-explanatory title. As you get excited with building big pieces – how do you get it fired? With 36 different kilns to choose from, you'll be able to get the job done! Diagrams and materials required to make the job easier and fun. What can be more enjoyable than a few friends over and a pit firing? Price R 253.80
3. The Manual of Sculpture Techniques - John Plowman.
Here we have a book for various sculpturing techniques in different materials with visual diagrams, step by step instructions. Definitely great book of practical know-how. Price R 247.30
4. Oriental Glazes - Michael Bailey
We have all admired Eastern pottery and wondered how did they do that? Here are glaze recipes for the full bodied and translucent glazes they perfected over the years from the heavy lustre cover to the most delicate celadon, not only green but blue and blue/green. Perfect enhancement for your pieces. With clear instructions your search for the finished look could be over. Price 236.80

5. Working with Precious Metal Clay - Tim McCreight.
Silver clay is sweeping the studios and with 50 projects and 25 techniques, this book offers good ways to get started. From fine pieces to crinkly styles, it is bound to be an inspiration to play. Price R 338.40.

HINTS & TIPS

Use a scourer or damp sponge to correct pencil/carbon designs on bisque. Do not use erasers – this rejects the glaze. Also when using sandpaper – do not over do it, as the surface becomes too shiny and smooth and again the glaze does not stick.

Claybright Hints & Tips

When using the Claybright Brush On Glaze – it is better to apply this to greenware.

3D's - don't add water to them – stir vigorously with the back of a brush then tap to get the air bubbles out. If the bottle has lost moisture then add just one drop of water if absolutely necessary.

CRAIG'S HELPLINE.....

If smoke is coming from where the electrical connections are situated, then switch off your kiln instantly. If it continues to smoke, you better call the fire department otherwise call your friendly kiln specialist for help.

If the smoke is coming from the firing chamber, then there has to be combustible material in the clay or left in the greenware. Relax, this smoke will disappear in a relatively short space of time. Kiln bricks and elements don't burn.

Have a Merry Christmas!

Happy pottingCRAIG
